

Study Mandarin Chinese Language and Culture at Concordia University

Concordia University's Faculty of Arts and Science is pleased to announce the creation of two new programs of study in Modern Mandarin Chinese Language and Culture.

Choose from among two options:

- a 30-credit Minor designed for students already enrolled or planning to enroll in a Major, Specialization or Honours program at Concordia
- a 30-credit Certificate aimed at members of the community who do not wish to pursue a degree program

Students in both programs learn introductory and intermediate Mandarin Chinese language skills while exploring Chinese literature, culture and history.

The Minor and Certificate programs include:

- 21 credits in introductory and intermediate Modern Mandarin Chinese (taught in classes that are kept to a maximum of 25 students)
- 9 additional credits, to be chosen among elective courses focusing on modern Chinese literature, the history and politics of China, and Chinese and East Asian religions.
- as part of the elective credits, students have the option of enrolling in a new, three-credit course entitled Introduction to Business Chinese, focusing on the vocabulary, style and practices of doing business in China.

For more information, call (514) 848-2424, ext. 2084 or visit us on the web at <http://artsandscience.concordia.ca>

Classes start in September, 2004

Space is limited. Priority registration in individual classes will be given to students enrolled in either the Minor or Certificate programs.

Please note that students with advanced Chinese-language skills are not eligible for admission to either program. Other than language classes, all courses are taught in English. Literature courses use English translations of Chinese texts.
